and ruined ideals of life, it brought some revelations that, if they are conscientiously heeded, will in some measure justify the terrible cost of the war. This is particularly true in the United States where fortunately, coming into the war last we lost least along the lines where other nations suffered most severely.

To us the war brought some revelations absolutely staggering in their significance. We were not prepared to be told that twenty-one and two-tenths per cent of our men of draft age were physically unable to undertake military training.

It is strange that for years a nation that has boasted of being thoroughly abreast of human progress should have been content that a million and a third of its people should die every year—a large percentage of them needlessly, since they died as a result of preventable sickness—an evidence of defective civilization.

It is somewhat comforting to know that as a result of this war revelation it has been demonstrated that this great loss of human asset is not by any means necessary—that even the most fundamental endeavor for betterment immediately registered results that show the possibilities for

In this work the American Rec Cross has taken a clearly-defined and successful part. Avoiding scrupulous ly the danger of overlapping activi-ties, shunning fields of effort already fully occupied, refusing any competition with existing organizations, it has in the way of shattered civilization found in the mission and the work of the Public Health nurse a field pecu liarly its own.

Historically and practically, Nurs ing Service is fundamental to the work of the Red Cross. It is the coordinating, registering and distributing agen cy for a profession that both in wa and peace has proven itself absolute by necessary to the general safety. There now are twelve hundred and twenty-two trained Red Cross Public Health nurses assigned to the service of Chapters and communities thruou the country.

U. OF M. OUTGROW-W ING ITS CAPACITY

BUILDINGS AND EQUIPMENT IS FELT.

The University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, wonderful as it already is, is being forced to grow and expand at a tremendous rate due to the demands thrust upon it. The student body has grown from a membership of four or five thousand of a few years ago to more than eleven and a half thousand prise are Mr. Charles Wilber and his and is still reproduct growing Whom and is still rapidly growing. When the University opened last month more than a thousand was added to its av-erage attendance of a year ago.

In an address attended by the editor of this paper, and given by President Burton of the university, the lat ter gave an outline of the building plans for that institution, and told of the great needs that are required in order to keep the U. of M. up to even the demands that are made upon it The old literary building that has been in use for fifty years, must be replaced with a modern structure and of much greater dimensions. The medical department is sadly in need of larger quarters. The University hos-pital, thru which 18,000 patients passed during the last year, is far short of room and equipment. Many other branches of that great university have long since outgrown themselves and more land must be purchased and more buildings erected in order to supply the needs of the day.

President Burton stated that the Board of regents had asked the State legislature of 1921 for an appropriation of 8 million dollars and that there had been appropriated only but about half that amount. This year the proper university authorities will again ask the legislature to supply the necessary finances to keep Michigan university where it should be; to provide adequate resources for the train-ing of our boys and girls, the future men and women who will soon have to conduct the affairs of the nation. He made it plain to the large body of newspaper publishers of Michigan, to whom he was speaking, that the Uni-versity cannot stand still and that provision must be made for keeping it in the front ranks among educational institutions of America, where it may continue to maintain the high educa-tional standards for which Michigar has been noted, and predicted that the time was not far distant when it would be second to none. CHAPTER XIV-Continued.

--11---For once a ray of cheer came to The Rodaines had known of this strike long before he ever went to that office in Denver. They had wait-ed long enough to have their assays made and had completed their first shipment to the smelter. There was no necessity that they buy the Blue Poppy mine. Therefore, was it simply another trick to break him, to lead him up to a point of high expecta-tions, then, with a laugh at his dis-appointment, throw him down again? His shoulders straightened as they reached the outside air, and he moved close to Harry as he told him his conjectures. The Cornishman bobbed

"I never thought of it that wye!" he agreed. "But it could explain a lot of things. They want to beat us and they don't care 'ow. It 'urts a person to be disappointed. That's it. I alwyes said you 'ad a good 'ead on than occasional, and further than that, it appeared to descend upon him at vou! That's it. Let's go back to the Back they went, once more to descend the shaft, once more to follow the trail along the drift toward the opening of the stope. And there, where loose earth covered the place where a skeleton once had rested. Fairchild took off his coat and rolled

'Harry," he said, with a new determination, "this vein doesn't look like much, and the mine looks worse. But if you're game, I'm game, and we'll work the thing until it breaks us.'

"You've said it. If we 'it anything, fine and well-if we can turn out five thousand dollars' worth of stuff be-fore the trial comes up, then we can sell hit under the direction of the court, turn over that money for a cash bond, and get the deeds back. If we can't, and if the mine peters out, then we ain't lost anything but a lot of 'opes and time. But 'ere goes. We'll double-jack. I've got a big 'ammer 'ere. You 'old the drill for awhile and furn it, while I sling th' sledge. Then you take th' 'ammer and Lor' 'ave mercy on my 'ands if you miss.

Fairchild obeyed. Hour after hour grew late, Harry disappeared down the drift to return with a handful of greasy, candlelike things, wrapped in waxed paper,

"But if you do?"
"Oh, then!" Harry laughed, it's flowers and a funeral—after they've finished picking you up." One after another he pressed the dynamite charges tight into the drill holes and tamped them with muck wrapped in a newspaper that he dragged from his hip pocket. Then he lit the fuses from his lamp and stood a second in assurance that they all were spluttering.

"Now we run!" he announced, and they hurried, side by side, down the drift tunnel until they reached the shaft. "Far enough," said Harry.

A long moment of waiting. Then the earth quivered and a muffled, booming roar came from the distance

"One," he announced, Then, "Two." Three, four and five followed, all counted seriously, carefully by Harry. Finally they turned back along the drift toward the stope, the acrid of dynamite smoke cutting at their nostrils as they approached the spot where the explosions had occurred There Harry stood in silent contempla tion for a long time, holding his car-bide over the pile of ore that had been torn from the vein above.

"It ain't much," came at last, "Not more'n 'arf a ton. We won't get rich at that rate. And besides—" he looked upward—"we ain't even going to be getting that pretty soon. It's pinching

Fairchild followed his gaze, to see in the torn rock above him only a narstreak now, fully an inch and s half narrower than the veln had been before the powder holes had been drilled. It could mean only one thing that the bet had been played and lost that the vein had been one of those freak affairs that start out with much promise, seem to give hope of eternal riches, and then gradually dwindle to nothing. Harry shook his head.

"It won't last."
"Not more than two or three more

Then, by common consent, they laid away their working clothes and left the mine, to wander down the guich and to the boarding house. After din ner they chatted a moment with Mother Howard, then went upstairs, each to his room. An hour later Harry knocked at Fairchild's door, and entered, the evening paper in his band.

"Ere's something more that's nice." he announced, pointing to an item or the front page. It was the announce ment that a general grand jury was to be convened late in the summer and that one of its tasks would be to seek to unravel the mystery of the murder of Sissie Larsen! Fairchild read it with morbidity.

it appeared to descend upon him at sist it. He made no comment: there was little that he could say. Again he read the item and again, finally to turn the page and breathe sharply Before him was a six-column adver-tisement, announcing the strike in the Before him Silver Queen mine and also spreading word that a two-million-dollar company would be formed, one mil lion in stock to represent the mine itploit this new find as it should be ex ploited. Glowing words told of the possibilities of the Silver Queen. Of fices had been opened; everything had planned in advance and the vertisement written before the town was aware of the big discovery up Kentucky gulch. All of it Fairchild read with a feeling he could not down -a feeling that Fate, somehow, was dealing the cards from the bottom, and that trickery and treachery and ingredients, after all, to success. He finished the last line, looked at the list officers, and gasped.

For there, following one another were three names, two of which Fair-child had expected. But the other— They were, president and general manager, R. B. (Squint) Rodaine; secretary-treasurer, Maurice Rodaine; and first vice president—Miss Anita Natalle Richmond!

After that, Fairchild heard little t a little up 'ere," he explained, cut one of the sticks in two about plans for the future. He sat and

She had gone over to the Rodaines, she was engaged to marry the chalky-faced, hook-nosed son and she was vice president of their two-million-dollar mining corporation, Fairchild did not even strive to find a meaning for it all; women are women, and men do well some times if they diagnose themselves. The summer began to grow old, and Fairchild felt that he was aging with The bank deposits were thinning and the vein was thinning with it. Slowly but surely, as they fought, the strip of pay ore in the rocks was pinching out. Soon would come the time when they could work it no longer. And then-but Fairchild did not like to think about that.

September came, and with it the grand jury. But here for once was a slight ray of hope. The body of twelve good men and true wore themselves out with other matters and adjourned without even taking up the mystery of the Blue Poppy mine. But short-lived. In the long, legal phraseology of the jury's report was the recommendation that this important subject be the first for inquiry by the next grand inquisitorial body to be convened — and the threat still remained.

But before the two men were now realities which were worse even than threats, and Harry turned from his staging late one afternoon to voice the most important.

"We'll start single-jacking tomorrow," he announced with a little sigh.
"In the 'anging wail. The vein's pinched down until we ain't even get ting day laborer's wages out of it-and it's October now."

October! October-and winter on the way. October-and only a month until the time when Harry must face a jury on four separate charges, any one of which might send him to Canon City for the rest of his days. Fair-child's hopes lay inert. He was only working now because a great, strong, Cornwall to help him and was willing to fight it out to the end. October-and the announcement had said that a certain girl would be married in the late fall, a girl who never looked in his direction any more, who had allowed her name to become affiliated ing the task of completing their two million. October!

For a long moment, Fairchild said nothing, then as Harry came from the staging, he moved to the older man's side.

"I-I didn't quite catch the idea," came at last. Harry pointed with his sledge.

"I've been noticing the vein. It keeps turning to the left. It struck me that it might 'ave branched off from the main body and that there's a bigger vein over there some'eres. We'll just 'ave to make a try for it. It's our only chance."
"And if we fail to And it there?"
"If 't ain't there—we're whipped!"

It was the first time that Harry had said the word seriously. Fairchild pretended not to 'ear. Instead, he offer had not been made as some sort which they had erected just at the of stiletto jest, why had it been made foot of the little raise leading to the stope. They were being whipped; they felt it in every atom of their beings. But they had not given up their fight. Two blows were left in the struggle. and two blows they meant to strike with a desire to reach the mine, to before the end came. The next morning they started at their new tusk, each drilling holes at points five feet apart in the hanging wall, to send them in as far as possible, then at the end of the day to blast them out, tearing away the rock and stopping their work at drilling that they might muck away the refuse. And day after day, each, without mentioning it to the other, was tortured by the thought of that offer of riches, that mysterious proffer of wealth for the Blue Poppy mine-tortured like men who chained in the sight of gold and not reach it. For the offer carried always the hint that wealth was like all the rest. You're hoping. Either that-or flat failure.

October gave up its fight. The first day of November came, to find the chamber a wide, vacuous thing now, sheltering stone and refuse and two struggling men—nothing more. Fair-child ceased his labors and mopped his forehead, dripping from the heat engendered by frenzied labor. A long moment, then:

"Aye.

"I'm going after the other side. We've been playing a half-horsed game

"I've been thinking that, Boy, "Then I'm going to tackle the foot wall. I was at the bank today."

"My balance is just two hundred." Harry clawed at his mustache. We're nearing the end, Boy. Tackle the foot wall."

They said no more. Fairchild withdrew his drill from the "swimmer" or straightforward powder hole and forward. At last come an exclamation, surprised, wondering:

"Not as I know of. Why?",
"There's one." Fairchild raised his

"What the bloody 'ell?" he conjectured. "D' you suppose—" Then, with a sudden resolution: "Drill there! Gad a'ole off to one side a bit and drill there. It seems to me Sissie Larsen put a 'ole or something—I can't remember. But drill. It can't Larsen put a 'ole or do any 'arm."

The gad chipped away the rock. Soon the drill was biting into the surface of the foot wall. Quitting time came; the drill was in two feet, and in the morning, Fairchild went at his task again, pounding away at the long, six-foot drill with strokes that had behind them only muscles, not the intense driving power of hope. A foot he progressed into the foot wall and changed drills. Three inches more "Harry!"

CHAPTER XV

Fairchild did not hesitate, Scraping the watery conglomeration into a tobacco can, he threw on his coat and ran for the shaft. Then pulled himself up, singing, and dived into the fresh-made drifts of a new storm as he started toward town nor did he stop to investigate the fastfading footprints of some one who evidently had passed the mine a short time before.

Into town and through it to the scrambling buildings of the Sampler. where the main products of the mine of Ohadi found their way before going to the smelter. There he swung room on the left, the sanctum of a white-haired, almost tottering old man who wandered about among his test tubes and "buttons" as he figured out ores as the samples were brought to him from the dirty dusty, bin-filled cooms of the Sampler proper. A queer light came into the old fellow's as he looked into those of Robert Fairchild.

"Don't get 'em too high!" he ad-monished. Fairchild stared.

"What?" "Hopes, I've seen many a fellow come in just like you. I've been bere thirty year. They call me Old Under taker Chastine!"

Fairchild laughed

"But I'm hoping-"Yep, Son." Undertaker Chastine ooked over his glasses. "You're just Sobered now, Fairchild reached for Either wealth that would yield Squint his tobacco can, which had been a hundrejfold for his purpose, or a stuffed full of every scrap of slime sneer that would answer their offer that he and 'Arry had been able to to sell. And each man gritted his drag from the powder hole. Evident teeth and said nothing. But they ly, his drill had been in the ore, whatever it was, for some time before he realized it; the can was heavy, expurity of something at least. But Undertaker Chastine shook his head,  lead with a sprinkling of silver. And then again..." He began to tinker about with his pottery. He dragged out a scoop from somewhere and prepared various white powders. Then he turned to the furnace, with its high-chimneyed draft, and filled a container with the contents of the tobacco can.

"Can't tell," he announced, "Feels heavy, looks black and all that. But it might not be anything but straight

"Let 'er roast, Son," he announced.
"That's the only way. Let 'er roast and while it's getting hot, well, you just cool your heels."

Long waiting-while the eccentric old assayer told doleful tales of other days, tales of other men who had rushed in, just like Fairchild, with their sample of ore, only to depart with the knowledge that they were no richer than before, days when the swooped down upon the little town like some black tornado, closing down the mines, shutting up the gambling halls and great saloons, nailing up the doors, even of the Sampler, for years

He turned to the furnace and took out the pottery dish in which the sample had been smelting white-hot now. He cooled it and tinkered with scales, he adjusted his glasses, he coughed once or twice in an embar-rassed manner; finally to turn to Fairchild.

"Young man," he queried, "it ain't any of my business, but where'd you get this ore?"

"Out of my mine, the Blue Poppy!" "Sure you ain't been visiting?" "What do you mean?" Fairchild was staring at him in wonderment.

Old Undertaker Chastine rubbed bis bands on his big apron and continued ok over his glasses. "What'll you take for the Blue Poppy mine, Son?"

"Why-it's not for sale." "Nuy-it's not for sale."
"Sure it ain't going to be—soon?"
"Absolutely not." Then Fairchild caught the queer look in the man's eyes. "What do you mean by all these questions? Is that good ore-

"Son, just one more question-and l hope you won't get mad at me. I'm a funny old fellow, and I do a lot of things that don't seem right at the beginning. But I've saved a few young bloods like you from trouble more than once. You ain't been high

'You mean-" "Just exactly what I said-wander and picking up a few samples, as it were, to mix in with your own product? Or planting them "here ther can be found easily by a propective Fairchild's chin set, and his tous moved slowly. Then he laughed. "."o —I'll give you my word I haven't been high-grading," he said. "My partner and I drilled a hole in the foot wall of the stope where we were working, hoping to find the rest of a veln that was pinching out And we got this stuff. Is it any good?

"Is it good?" Again Old Under taker Chastine looked over his glasses "That's just the trouble. It's too ood—it's so good that it seems there's something funny about it. Son, that stuff assays within a gram, almost ore they're taking out of the Silver Queen!

"What's that?" Fairchild had leaped forward and grasped the other mar by the shoulders, his eyes agleam, his whole being trembling with excitement. "You're not kidding me about ment.

? You're sure—you're sure?"
"Boy, you've got a bonanza, if this holds out. It's almost identical. I never saw two samples of ore that were saw two samples of ore that were more alike. Let's see, the Blur Poppy's right up Kentucky gulch, nor so very far away from the Silvet Queen, isn't it? Then there must be a tremendous big vein concealed around there somewhere that splits one half of it running through the mountain in one direction and the other cutting through on the opposite side. It looks like peaches and cream

"I don't know. We just happened to put a drill in there and this is som of the scrapings.

"You haven't cut into it at all "Not unless Harry, my partner, has put in a shot since I've been gone."

Indians Copyrighted Totem Poles. Copyright laws were framed long ago by the primitive Indians of Brit ish Columbia and Alaska to protect the quaint designs of their totem They were instituted along ex the same lines as followed by the white man today and were rigidly enforced. To be the owner of a totem pole was a sign of social position rank, wealth and power. It took years of work, sometimes by very expensive artists, to carve the figures and crests relating to the traditions of the family of the owner. A rule that the artist must not duplicate any carving al ready in existence in the region was rigidly enforced, making the first workings of a copyright law in North America. Lydia E. Pinkham's Priva

The critical time of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 50, and is often beset with annoying symptoms such as nervousness, irritability, melancholia. Heat flashes or waves of heat appear to pass over the body, cause the face to be very red and often bring on headache, dizziness and a sense of suifocation.

Another annoying symptom which comes at this time is an inability to recall names, dates or other small facts. This is liable to make a woman lose confidence in herself. She becomes nervous, avoids meeting strangers and dreads to go out alone.

strangers and dreads to go out alone.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted to help women at this time. It exercises a restorative influence, tones and strengthens the system, and assists nature in the long weeks and months covering this period. Let it help carry you through this time of life. It is a splendid medicine for the middle-aged woman. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics.

Who reads the new mystery story

"The Green Archer"

By EDGAR WALLACE

In THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Beginning Thursday, November 2

The story—the newspaper serial story—has become the habit, and a very good habit, of the great majority of American newspaper readers. The reason is not far to seek. After the strenuous day the evening story, moving on the wings of imagination, brings with its complete change of thought and interest a benediction of mental rest that makes an almost universal appeal. In presenting "The Green Archer"—a new story of mystery—The Chicago Daily News introduces a new feature of added interest in story reading-a distribution of $3,000 in prizes for the best solutions of the story's mystery. Here is a battle of wits that should provoke the best efforts of the reader to rank as one of the one hundred and sixty victors in the

The Chicago Daily News is pre-eminently a family newspaper, and its long established daily installment of a high-grade serial story is a feature intended specially to commend it to the home circle.
To emphasize—and advertise—the fact that The Chicago Daily News is a newspaper particularly intended for women's reading, the condition is made that the three thousand dollars in prizes shall be paid only for explanations of the story's mystery sent in by women and girls. All may read, but only women and girls may enter the contest-and win the three thousand collars.

Conditions of the Award of $3,000:

1. To the reader from whom The Daily News receives by mail at its publication offices, 15 North Wells street, Chicago, the most complete and correct solution in all its details of the entire mystery in "The Green Archer," as it shall be disclosed in the final chapter of the story, to be published Wednesday, December 13, in The Daily News, the sum of $1,000 will be paid. The entire sum of $3,000 will be awarded in 160 prizes as follows:

For the sest solution $1,000

For the second best solution $250

For the third best solution $150

For the fourth best solution $150

For the next best two solutions ($75 each) $150

For the next best four solutions ($50 each) $250

For the next best ten solutions ($50 each) $250

For the next best forty solutions ($10 each) $400

For the next best tore solutions ($10 each) $500

Making a total of one hundred and sixty prizes.....$3,000 2. "The Green Archer," beginning Thursday, November 2, will continue in a daily installment until Friday, December 1, on which date all but the final chapter will have been published. The interval between Friday, December 1 and Saturday, December 9, inclusive, will be allowed for forwarding the solutions of the mystery.

8. The final installment of the story, disclosing the mystery, will be published in The Daily News Wednesday, December 13.

Roll! Em Over!

Roll! Em Over!

Potatoes are dug. Corn shocked, and a lot of it husked. All of it should, by this time, be in silo or shed. What next?

Fall plowing to be sure!
Fall plowing has many advantages in Northern Michigan; and the thrifty farmer will be doing a lot of it.

Some of these advantages are named beliew. Gets finished many days of work that would crowd us in the spring; and either go undone or be poorly done.

The action of frost is good for fall plowed soil. Sod becomes partly decayed by planting time. Vast numbers of insects and their eggs are killed by fall plowing, either by freezing or by being turned out so that birds can get them. Do not fall plow hillsides with steep slope, for gullying may start.

Do not drag fall plowing. The rough surface catches and holds snow better.

Sod that is to be fall plowed should be covered thin with the valuable fertilizers from toilet, hen house, pig.

be covered thin with the valuable fer-tilizers from toilet, hen house, pig pen, and barn yard pen, and parn yard.

Having lone this fall plowing, the farmer who is up and coming is then ready to spread his pulverized limestone right where it belongs, right on top, to be disced and dragged in.

As I drive along I note with much satisfaction that some are on the right track, and are fall plowing. Jens Hanson, Hans Peter Jenson and Al Failing have nice big pieces Go to it, gentlemen! Roll 'em over!

All farmers here have equal chance. All tarmers here have equal chance. The season is as long for one as for the other. Some will get fall plowing done, and some will not. The majority will not.

What will be the result? It will be this: Next spring many will not put in as large a field of oats, corn, potatoes or millet as they wanted to, nor as large a piece as they need, be-cause "I did not have time to get the the ground ready."

At the Forks of the Road.

For the Family's Sake. For the Coun ty's Sake.

For the sake of the family; for the sake of what people will say of the county, and of us as they pass, choose right, brother, as you stand at the forks of the road this morning, and 'em over; roll' em over!

A Lady for the Ladies. I have secured the promise of the State Home Demonstration Agent, from our Agricultural College, to give November 21 and 22 to the ladies of two country neighborhoods. Then, in a month, she will return, and so on two days a month.

We can pick our subjects from these: Dress Making; Millinery; Household Management; Health in the Home.

Home.

I wonder which two neighborhoods has a progressive lot of ladies who would like to have this lady demonstrator come. I think it would be nice to meet at rupe, have bot lock dinner, and go home at three-thirty, don't you? Who will be first to apply? ply?

Moving Pictures.

I have rented a moving picture ma-chine, films and battery for the last week in November and the first week

r December.
I intend to show these good pic I intend to show these good pictures, free, in practically every school house and town shall in the county where people will give us the glad hand, invite us to supper, to stay all night, and will see that the building is warm and lighted.

I have seen these pictures. They are good! They are moving pictures and very entertaining and instructive.

On the Back Steps.

What a funny world this is!
When I call, at many farm homes,
I am treated with all the cordiality that a long lost brother might receive. The kindly manner of the man of the house, and his wife, and the earnestness with which they urge me to stay to meals is heart warming.
And, I am vain enough to think that, before I leave I do thet farm same before I leave. I do that farm some good. But, oh you back steps! I am an expert on back steps, for how often do I stand there, with the dog smelling at my heels, and never get any farther!

Now, brother. No stolen property has ever been traced to me. I never call when I might spread measles or whooping cough or itch.

I can't do my best while standing numbly on the back steps.

Three Amendments for Consideration of Voters Election Day

AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

Relative to

Empowering the Legislature to Authorize Municipalities to Condemn and to Take the Fee to Excess Land and Property for Parks, etc., and to Issue Bonds Therefor.

Amendment to Article XIII of the Constitution, empowering the legislature to authorize municipalities to condemn more land than is necessary for certain public purposes and to issue bonds therefor; it being proposed that said Article be amended by adding thereto a new section, to be known as section five, to read as follows:

Sec. 5. Subject to this Constitution the legislature mayauthorize municipalities, subject to reasonable limitations, to condition and to take the fee to more land and property than is needed in the acquiring, opening and widening of parks, boulevards, public places, streets, alleys, or for any public use, and after so much of the land and property has been appropracted for any such needed public purpose, the remainder may be sold or leased with or without such restrictions as may be appropriate to the improvement made. Bonds may be issued to supply the funds to pay in whole or in part for the excess property so appropriated, but such bonds shall be a lien only on the property so acquired and they shall not be included in any limitation of the bonded indebtedness of such municipality."

Herbert Hoover Backs Townsend

Herbert Hoover, in his recent De troit speech, put the duty of the vot ers of Michigan squarely before them

He said:
"If you discard public servants like U. S. Senator Charles E. Townsend you destroy the efficiency of your gov-ernment proportionately. There is a tremendous responsibility upon the citizens of Michigan to return to Washington Senator Townsend, who has thoroughly mastered the intricate machinery of the federal government and who brings proven experience to bear in the government's efforts to solve the unusual problems inherited from the world war which it now is

These statements form an appeal to Michigan to re-elect Senator Town-send on November 7 for the general good of the nation. Coming from a man as independent in thought and judgment as Mr. Hoover, such an appeal should carry great weight. Mr Hoover also stated:

"One of the reasons why a season ed, experienced senator like Senator Townsend is facing opposition for election at this time is because in the twelve years he has been in the United States Senate he has slaved in committee rooms where 99 per cent of the work of the senate is done, and has neglected the so-called purely po-litical side of public office."

This is true. Senator Townsend has depended for re-election on his record in office, not on devoting much of his energy to building up "politi-cal fences" in his home state, while neglecting his work in the national capital. Mr. Townsend's opponents do not dare to assail this record on any material point.

WOMEN STUDYING ISSUES

"What is your impression of wo men's interest in politics?" was asked in Washington of a senator just returned from touring his state.

'They are taking lots of interest," was his reply. "I believe the women are studying the issues more than the men are.

In most states women have taken a very active interest in the primary elections. Republican women's organizations are flourishing everywhere, even in the south. From Maine to California women are turning out in great numbers to political theetings to hear the orators. They are not doing all the listening, either, for almost every program includes at least one voman speaker. These hold up their end very satisfactorily.

Nobody is surprised at the announcemeet that several thousand swivel chairs are for sale in Washington. This is not a swivel-chair administration. But you didn't hear of any bargain sales of this kind between 1912 and 1920.—Kansas City Journal.

STAND BY AMERICA

VOTE NOVEMBER 7 for the reelection of United States Senator Charles E. Townsend, Governor Alex J. Groesbeck and the whole Republican SENATOR TOWNSEND is opposed to the U.S. entering the League of Nations. Were we in the League today the blood of American boys would be staining the sands of Asia Minor in a war that would only the selfish interests of Europe.

SENATOR TOWNSEND is the National Leader of the Great St. Lawrence Waterway Project, which will give lake ports direct access to the sea. He is the National Good Roads Leader, sponsor of Welfare Laws Governing Child Labor and Virile Worker for all Real Progressive Legislation.

In voting for Townsend you vote for America's best interests.

GOVERNOR GROESBECK is giving Michigan an efficient, economical, able administration. In the past year he and the State Administrative Board have saved the State $1,839,617.63 in expenses. The general tax levy for 1922 is $3,140,489.85 less than that of 1921, and the lowest since 1918. Even greater accomplishments are expected next year.

In voting for Groesbeck you vote for Michigan's best interests.

Candidate Republican Ticket

Election Tues., Nov. 7, 1922. Your Dote will be appreciated.

To the Voters of Crawford Co.

I am a property owner in Crawford county and intend to make this place my home indefinitely.

It is important to every citizen that the county sheriff give the best of service. If elected I shall prove to you that your confidence in me has not been misplaced, and shall give my best efforts toward doing my full duty every day in conducting the affairs of the office.

Sincerely yours, IESS BOBENMOYER.

Will appreciate your Vote.

Election, Tues. Nov. 7.

OLIVER B. SCOTT has been a resident of Crawford county since 1978, and has been a tax payer 23 years. He is an enterprising citizen and does his work thoroughly, as is proven by his records as Township Clerk, Postmaster, and Supervisor of South Branch Township.

zens of his community, and believes in working for the upbuilding of the commonwaulu in which he lives.

He will make a first-class County Clerk, if elected, and those voting for him need never have to make excuses for having done

He believes that a person in public office should give first attention to the duties of such office in preference to his personal matters, and always be on the job for the accommodation of those wishing to do business.

Frank

County Clerk

As a life long resident of Crawford County I am pledged to your service, not only by actual training and practical experience, but with measure of civic pride and loyalty. During the year past the responsibilities of your County Clerk's office have increased to such a condition that the proper and careful handling of the affairs of this office are of the most serious concern to the people of this county inasmuch that consideration should be taken of the importance of having the records of this department correctly and accurately handled. I refer particularly to the Uniform Accounting System, which practically makes the Clerk's office an Accounting department for the entire county

Results achieved have received the commendation of state officials, and I trust of my fellow citizens.

Your personal inspection of the records of this office at any time is invited, and I assure you of an honest administration of all business inci-FRANK SALES dent thereto, in the future as in the past.

(Extract from the first annual audit under the Uniform Accounting System for Crawford County as approved Sept. 30, 1922.)

FINDINGS OF THE COUNTY CLERK DEPARTMENT.

"We are especially pleased to find that no moneys have been drawn from the County Treasury except on vouchers properly authorizing the same. The classification and arrangement of the records pertaining to the County Road Fund expenditures and the requisition of supplies is something you did not have a year ago and while it is partly due to the new system, you are to be commended for the thoroughness of your work......"

COAL BARONS ARE REAPING HARVEST

PUBLIC NOW PAYING FOR COST OF INDUSTRIAL WAR IN HIGHER PRICES.

OPERATORS WIN EITHER WAY

State Regulation Only Expected to B Partial Success in Restraining Extortion From Consumers.

Washington-The public's pocket book nerve-most sensitive of all nerves in the body politic—is now feeling the effect of industrial war losses. These losses are huge. The public has begun liquidating the bill for the frays between capital and labor by paying higher prices on some of the chief necessities of life. Higher prices on articles that are indispens able in the households of the land may go through the entire winter and into next spring because of this year's periodical labor scrap.

High cost of coal will be at the root of most of the financial burdens of the people. Everything that industry manufactures will take on an added cost because the overhead charges of oper ation are thereby increased.

barons will derive Only the coal comfort from this new era of inflation. State price control, now relied upon by the federal government to hold prices of fuel in check, can be at best only a partial success in restrain ing extortion. The coal operators figure to win in any event. It is no secret that they have laid their plans to double their normal profits on all coal sold this winter. In the end they will lose nothing by the long tie-up in the mines.

First results of the industrial war which has embroiled both railroad and coal industries was recession in commercial and industrial activity. Industrial activity slowed down considerably because of scarcity of coal supnlies. The difficulties of transports tion have also been a retarding factor to business. As winter approaches these troubles probably will aggravated.

SAYS FRANCE IS NOT INDEBTED

French Financier Declares Foch's Genius Offsets Entire War Loan,

Paris-France paid her war debt to he United States with the genius of her generals and therefore owes nothing, according to the startling theory developed by Francois Marsal, forme minister of finance.

The possible premier at a dinner to prominent bankers and business men of Paris, declared:

"In terminating the war in 1918, which otherwise would not have been finished for another year, Marshal Foch saved the lives of thousands of young Americans without counting the dollars which such a prolongation would have cost.

"Thus the payment of France's debt to America is easy. We have only to put on our bill 'to the genius of Foch, one hundred billion dollars', thus wiping out the entire debt and leaving America in debt to us'.'

War Profiteers Covered Guilt,

Washington-Several billions of dollars paid out by the government on fraudulently made war contracts never will be recovered, because, in the thousands of cases representing those vast payments, dishonesty and conspiracy cannot be proved, it was de-clared officially at the department of justice. The department admits that profiteers in many instances in actual league with officials of the government, covered up their tracks so well that government agents are now unable to clinch cases against them.

PLAN TO CONTROL WEATHER

Scheme Has Been the Dream of Many Scientists, but Nothing Practical
Has Been Evolved.

Three or four years ago a Sheffield (Eng.) workingman claimed to be putting the finishing touches to an instru-ment to enable him "to focus beams of ether oscillation" and so control the weather. Unfortunately, the instru-ment could not have been so perfect as he thought, for nothing further has been heard of it. Before that a Leeds scientist had come to the conclusion that it was "within the scope of human possibility to prevent disastrous cyclones, hurricanes and storms, and even to improve permanently the weather of the British isles." The idea was the production of an instrument enabling the operator to collect or dissemble the molecules which form the atmosphere, securing the degree of density desired and so arranging the best weather required for any dis-trict or seasonal occupation. More than twelve years ago Sir Oliver Lodge demonstrated that fog could be dis-pelled by electricity, though the process was too costly for adoption une. enerally.

COAL OF VEGETABLE ORIGIN

bundant Proof That Huge Forests In Former Epochs of the Earth Became Petrified.

Although in most instances there are comparatively few traces of its vegetable origin left, coal owes its existence to the vast masses of vegeta ble matter deposited through the urlant growth of plants in former epochs of the earth's history, and since slowly converted into a petrified state.

Coal fields today present abundant indications of the existence of huge ancient forests, usually in the form of coal formed from the roots of trees. Several such forests have been uncovered, one of which in Nova Scotia is a good example. Remains of trees have been found there, six to eight feet in height and four feet in diameter. In a colliery in England, in a space of about one-quarter of an acre, there have been found the fossilized stumps of 73 trees, with roots at-tached, and broken-off trunks lying about, one of them 30 feet long, and all of them turned into coal.

AUTO CLUB HEAD FIGHTS GAS TAX

CALLS PROPOSED PLAN TO MULCT CAR OWNERS FOR FUEL THEY USE UNJUST.

If Additional Money is Needed to Run State Affairs Conference Should Be Called to Work Out Plan.

RY COL. SIDNEY D. WALDON

Certain interests in the State of Michigan are advocating a tax on all gasoline used within the borders of the State. They have been openly working for the measure for some months to develop sentiment in favor ers. of additional taxation for the man who owns a motor car. It is their intention, they intimate, to go before the Legislature in January, 1923, and ask that body to enact a law that will require every user of gasoline to pay a tax of one cent or more per gallon on all they purchase.

As is usually the case in tax matters the proponents of the plan are proceeding under the assumption that anything used in connection with an automobile is readily taxable. They seem to feel it is the duty of the more than 500,000 motor car owners in Michigan to dig into their purses just because somebody happens to think because somebody happens to think this a good way to raise money.

Auto Made Michigan.

If there is one State in the Union where unjust taxes should not be saddled on to the motor car it is Michigan. The motor car has been the making of the Wolverine State industrially. Had not this wonder industry of the 20th continue dustry of the 20th continue dustry. dustry of the 20th century developed in Michigan the State would be industrially where it was two decades back. We all know Michigan was not among the industrial leaders, though she is today, and the motor shrub planting may be postponed instrubulent with the control of the progress. dustry of the 20th century developed car is to be thanked for the progress definitely.

The motorists of Michigan and the United States are aiready paying their fair share and perhaps more, of the taxes. Take, for instance, the main tax levies, of which there are five. They may be listed as follows: National income taxes common on all individuals. 2. Sales tax paid by the manufacturer and passed on by him to the owner, and limited to the automobile and a few other industries

3. Taxes on repair parts; a anent charge on the life of all mobiles, whether pass mass or to a tax specific to the auto own r

4. State license and registration fees, a virtual monopoly to the auto-mobilist. Scattering taxes, such as driv er's license, chauffeur's license, cor-tificate of title, etc.

Motorists Pay Millions.

Bureau of Internal Revenue figures for 1920, the last available in Governmental reports, show that the public treasury collected in round figures $267,000,000 in special and discriminatory taxes on automobiles in the The Federal Government took $149,000,000, the States $107,000,000, and Municipalities $11,000,000.

A study of tax figures in Michigan is interesting. It reveals that personal and real property pay only 2,90 percent on assessed valuation, while motor cars pay 5.12 percent, almost 100 per cent more. These figures are based on State figures for 1921, personal and real property value being sonat and real property value to sense $5,483,535,114, while cars are worth $131.814.863. The real and personal property pays $158.388.566.57, and the automobiles $6,751.924.51. When a Michigan man buys a Ford sented to a tax of one or more cents per gallon because they have been MAKING PROFITS ON REAL EStold it is a small item and because they do not realize how much the that motorists of Michigan will be forced to pay approximately $4,000,000 per annum if they accept the gasoline tax. This sum is based on gasoline sales in 1921. Are the motor car owners of Michigan ready to hand over this amount just to satisfy the whim of some group of tax proponents?

The idea seems to be to tax the automobile when in doubt. It is assumed that the motorist is "easy" and will not object to a little more taxation. Even if more money is needed to operate the State Government no tax of any kind should be founded on reasons of expediency such as ease of collection or ability to pay. Every tax should be based on rules of justice and equality.

Attractive condition. They may be substantially built, but the lack of superficial repairs and paint makes them ook unprepossessing.

An enterprising and industrious owner can make money on places of that kind in Grayling if one is skilled with tools, he can make many repairs for himself. Improvement of the lawn and setting out shrubs, trees, shaby looking home, and make it a nest of beauty.

The result of suc. an effort is commonly to induce the neighbors to clean up and improve their property. Thus streets once disorderly and uncard for begin to take on new style and spirit.
